

RESOURCE TOOLKIT

for supporting student-parents and their families

START HERE

Welcome! This resource toolkit was designed to connect parents to helpful local resources. The following pages share information that can be used by anyone—families, service providers, agency staff from community colleges or workforce centers or any other community members—to identify and reach out to services and supports that may enhance family self-sufficiency and wellbeing.

Why is it important to link student parents with support services?

Making sure student parents have access to and awareness of local resources can be critical for their success. Parents with young children often have to navigate multiple programs and systems, including early learning, health care, economic security to name a few. It can be challenging for anyone to find information and resources, and for student parents it can be an added layer to an already extremely heavy load of daily life. For student parents who are also experiencing other stressors in life, it can make it tough to manage their school load and inhibit their ability to graduate. To learn more about the impact of supporting student parents and offering a two-generation (2Gen) approach, please visit www.co-swfi.com.

Tips for using the Resource Toolkit

If you know what you're looking for...

Start with to the Table of Contents. Here you'll find a listing of all the categories of services and links to each section.

You may also use the “find” feature (CTRL + F on PC, or CMD + F on Mac) to enter in a keyword to search for within the document. An example has been provided below.

The screenshot shows a search interface with a search bar at the top right containing the text "GED". Below the search bar, a search results table is displayed. The table has columns for description, address, location, and links. A red box highlights the search bar and the "Found on 18 pages" indicator. A red arrow points from the search bar to the "GED" text in the first row of the table.

Service Name	Program Description	Contact Information	Service Area(s)	Agency
Child Welfare	When you call the Colorado Child Abuse and Neglect Hotline (1-844-CO-4-KIDS or 1-844-264-5437), you'll be immediately connected to the county where the child you're worried about lives. You'll speak with a certified call taker, who will ask you for the child's name and location, what you've observed, who you think may be hurting the child and more. Remember, call -- even if you don't have all the details. Based on the information you provide and what other callers may have shared about the same family, a group of professionals will review, evaluate, and determine what should be done to help the family.	Child Abuse and Neglect We all play a role in keeping children safe. To report suspected child abuse or neglect, call 1-844-CO-4-KIDS (1-844-264-5437). This hotline is available 24/7. If you see a child in a life-threatening situation, call 911 immediately. Legal Assistance	MVL's Power of Attorney Clinic aims to provide advanced planning documents to low-income clients, with a focus on serving low-income seniors. Volunteer attorneys assist clients with financial powers of attorney, medical powers of attorney, and living wills. The Power of Attorney Workshop is a two-step process and consists of a presentation and a clinic. The presentation, which typically takes place one week before the clinic, is designed to inform the clients of their advanced planning options and prepare them for their meeting with a volunteer attorney at the clinic. At the clinic, clients meet with a volunteer attorney who goes over the advanced planning documents, fills them out, tailors them to the client's wishes, and assists with the signing process. Transportation	Cars for Charity, Inc. is a Colorado 501(c)3 non-profit organization. The purpose and mission of Cars for Charity, Inc. is to act as an enabling entity for other non-profit organizations. Many non- profit organizations are unable to have an in-house vehicle donation program, because they financially are unable to spend the money required by the Colorado Department of Revenue to obtain a Dealer's License, bond and do not have the staff, time and expertise to manage an in- house program. Cars for Charity, Inc. eliminates these obstacles. Cars for Charity holds the Dealer's License, the motor vehicle bond, and brokers the donated vehicles to the appropriate facility for direct sale, auction or as scrap.	3478 Running Deer Dr. Castle Rock, CO 80109 720-387-5124  amandagearthart@carsforcharity.net	Denver Metro and Front Range	http://www.carsforcharity.net/ Cars for Charity Inc. # BACKGROUND

What is 2Gen?<sup>1</sup>

The Two-Generation Approach

Two-generation approaches focus on creating opportunities for and addressing needs of both children and the adults in their lives together. The approach recognizes that families come in all different shapes and sizes and that families define themselves.

Guiding Principles

These 5 principles should be embedded in two-generation programs, policies, and strategies:

- 1) Measure and account for outcomes for both children and their parents. Dual outcomes are at the heart of true two-generation programs. Programs and policies should measure how well they serve the whole family. Our report, Making Tomorrow Better Together, details the intended outcomes of a 2-generation approach
- 2) Engage and listen to the voices of families. Undergirding all of Ascend's work — from principles to practice to policy — is a commitment to listen to families and ensure their perspectives and experience inform program and policy design. Policies provide the scaffolding and structures that support parents; parents themselves fuel and create their family's successful path toward economic security.
- 3) Ensure equity. Two-generation strategies should evaluate and fix structural problems that create gender and/or racial and ethnic disparities in the ways that programs provide services and assistance. Many current funding streams and policies do not reflect the demographic realities of 21st century American families, where one in four U.S. children is growing up in a single-parent family, many headed by women, and where children and parents of color are disproportionately low-income.
- 4) Foster innovation and evidence together. Tap insights from prior evidence-based research and build a deliberate pipeline to ensure innovation. Policies and organizational cultures should encourage the integration of innovation into emerging evidence and evaluations of effectiveness.
- 5) Align and link systems and funding streams. Rarely will single funding streams fully address all the needs of children, parents, and families. Programs will need to blend and coordinate funds to deliver two-generation services. Aligning and linking systems at the state and community level — eligibility standards, performance benchmarks, and coordinated administrative structures — while simultaneously pursuing improved outcomes for both parents and children will lead to two-generation success.

The Two-Generation Continuum

Two-generation approaches can be found along a continuum.

Whole-family approaches focus equally and intentionally on services and opportunities for the child and the adults in their lives. They articulate and track outcomes for both children and adults simultaneously.

- Child-parent approaches focus first or primarily on the child but are moving toward a two-generation approach and include services and opportunities for the parent.
- Parent-child approaches focus first or primarily on the parent but are moving toward a two-generation approach and include services and opportunities for children.

5 Key Components (Domains)

In addition to the continuum, there are 5 Key Components (represented in the graphic to the right) of the two-generation Approach:

- 1) Postsecondary Education and Employment Pathways
- 2) Early Childhood Education and Development
- 3) Economic Assets
- 4) Health and Well-Being
- 5) Social Capital

What is the Strengthening Working Families Initiative (SWFI)?

In July 2016, the Community College of Aurora \(CCA\) and its project partners—including the Community College of Denver \(CCD\) and the Early Childhood Partnership of Adams County \(ECPAC\)—were awarded a $3.9 million U.S. Department of Labor Strengthening Working Families Initiative grant designed to expand education and access to entry-level career pathways for working families in east metro Denver.

A key aspect of this project is to address the childcare needs of working families as they seek to advance their education and career prospects through direct services and systemic policy, program and resource solutions. Gary Community Investments/The Piton Foundation has provided $1 million in matching funds to support the Learning Community work as well as other childcare-related project components.

The purpose of the SWFI Childcare Learning Community is to identify systemic barriers to childcare—including cost, quality and service capacity—for low-income parents in the Denver-Adams-Arapahoe region seeking employment and career advancement, and to ascertain potential solutions. In considering solutions, the Learning Community will take a focused look at program coordination, resource leveraging, and policy changes needed across agencies and systems serving low-income parents and their children, including higher education, workforce and human services. The Learning Community, which will be facilitated by The Civic Canopy and informed by research conducted by the Bell Policy Center, will draw upon a research-based Community Learning Model (CLM) that uses a deliberate step-by-step approach and continuous improvement orientation.

The main objectives of the Learning Community are to:

- ✓ Deepen understanding of the current landscape of childcare stakeholders and partnerships in the Denver-Adams-Arapahoe region
- ✓ Identify and address barriers in the alignment of early childhood education, workforce and postsecondary systems
- ✓ Identify childcare access solutions needed to promote parents' education and professional advancement
- ✓ Address system-wide challenges and prioritize solutions through a two-generation approach which honors both parents' and children's well-being

For more information about SWFI and related efforts, please contact XXXX.
